

I urge you to do nothing to lessen the Indiana Telephone Privacy law protections. Before this law was passed we received 8-10 unwanted phone calls soliciting a variety of products and/or services that we did not want. Now we get 1 about every 2 months and that is absolutely wonderful.

We are retired and if we need something we know where and when to get it. We know how to contact the companies that we do business with in the event we need additional products and/or services and consider it an invasion of our privacy for them to call us trying to promote something we don't need or want.

The Indiana Telephone Privacy Law should be left as it is. Briefly "It ain't broke, so don't fix it".

Thank you for your time.
